and one evening not decided as to the day, at Centre Market drill room.

The terms, which are moderate, with a view to bring instructions within the reach of all, are six dollars a course for each pupil, where there are classes of ten or more—private instruction also given. Gentlemen desirous of joining any of the above classes, can committee the control of the co knowledge of his weapons, and take great pleasure in recommending his system to the favorable notice of the military of our city.

Col. Stephens is an excellent awordsman and a good inatractor, and his system of exercise of the Cut and Thrust is in our opinion superior to any heretofore published.

Col. Stephens is now forming new classes for both Broad Sword and Cut and Thrust, and we recommend the military of the city to avail themselves of the opportunity of acquiring a thorough knowledge of these weapons.

DR. VONDERSMITH—

I give you my certificate with the greatest of pleasure now—tothink I enjoyed as good health as I did bus years ago. I have been under the treatment of a dozen physicians in New York, and they all pronounced me incurable—Dr. Mott. Dr. BriscoDr. Roose, and the last physician I was under was Dr. Kelly—he gave me no relief. They all said my lungs and liver were diseased. Beven o'clock in the morning I would commence coughing and cough for two hours. I would raise, during those two hours, a gill of master. I had great difficulty in breathing. I have lived upon bread milk the last six mounts. If I eat any meat it would not remain on my stomach. I was neduced to a perfect skeletoh—before I was taken sick I weighed 10 pounds. Since
Dr. Vondersmith has sucured me, I have gained 30 p

The Hibernia, Captain Ryrie, arrived at Boston on Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock. She left Liverpool August 20, and brings both London and Liverpool papers of that date.

The mails of the Hibernia were brought on from Boston over the Long Island Railroad by an express of the Post Office, despatched by E. T. Bridge, Esq., special agent of that department. The express train of cars over the Long Island Road, accomplished the distance of ninety-five miles in two hours and fifty minutes.

Rebeccaism seems to have broken out in Ireland. A toll house at Cooleshal, near Borris-in-Ossory, together with the toll gate, was recently levelled with the ground, and the toll man all the while kept a prisoner by two men with pistols.

The trade of nearly all the nations of Europe with China, appears to be increasing at a rapid rate. The German League are exporting large quantities of manufactured goods to that country, which are said to pay a good profit.

EXTENSIVE FAILURES IN MANCHESTER .- O Thursday afternoon a rumor was circulated on 'Change that two old established houses had failed in the sum of upwards of £70,000. On inquiry we find the report was perfectly correct. There is at present, but little known of the state of their affairs.

Import of American Manufactures.—By the recent arrivals from the United States, at this and other ports in England, a vast quantity of goods of various descriptions, which rank under the title of "Yankee Notions," have been imported, many of which met with a speedy sale. Amongst other articles brought over we may mention numerous Yankee clocks, which, however, owing to the quantity introduced, have become a drug in the market.

Yankee clocks, which, however, owing to the quantity introduced, have become a drug in the market.

ENGLISH CROPS.—Considerable uneasiness was created for the fate of the outstanding crops by the very unfavorable weather experienced in the early part of the week; there was scarcely a day without more or less rain in this neighborhood until Friday, and though the accounts from the country are not quite so disheartening as might have been expected, still by far too much wet has fallen in most parts of the kingdom. Harvest operations have, consequently, been brought to a stand in many localities, and the most anxious fears have been entertained relative to the effect likely to be produced by so great a quentity of rain at the present critical period. That injury to some extent has been done does not admit of a doubt, but we do not apprehend that the mischief would prove serious if the weather should continue as auspicious as it has been during the last day or two. The temperature was low until Friday, and the danger of the grain sprouting in the ear was thereby much lessence; it must, however, be confessed that the sanguine expectations at one time entertained of an unusually large yield of Wheat, do not seem very likely to be fullilled, and as the prospects in regard to spring cornave at no period been particularly flattering, the total produce of grain of the United Kingdom will, we fear, be less satisfactory than could be desired. Under these circumstances, it has become questionable whether prices will recede to so low a point as was at one time deemed probable; and holders have, within the last few weeks, shown a determination to watch events, under the impression that more wet weather might easily bring about a state of affairs which would render it to their advantage not to reduce their stocks to too low an ebb. A material falling off in the deliveries from the farmers has therefore taken place, and the inclination to buy having meanwhile increased, a further rise in prices has occurred.—Mark Lane

THE LEAGUE IN ENGLAND.—But it may be said to be a very stale device for getting rid of an opponent whom you cannot answer, to begin to talk of Bedlam or Hanwell. Let us print, then, a specimen of the poetry given in the League of last week, and given as the production of their leading bard. It is entitled "England in 1844," and here are the first and last verses of the of the piece:—

Rascaldom! Parsondom!
Lazy big Beggardom,
Playing the fool!
Helping with less and less
Fast-growing wretchedness!
Gatch'd Cayley creakingly,
Young England sneakingly
Shearing calves wool!

Trade on her dying bed:
Lifting her languid head,
Smiles with sad brow:
Land-leeches, damning us,
Cry, "She was banming us!"
Farmers, in luck again,
Trying to suck again,
Milk a dead cow!

Public Funeral of Dr. Dalton.—A public funeral was given at Manchester on the 12th ult, to the remains of Dr. Dalton, who died in Manchester a few days previous, aged 78. The Doctor was a member of the Society of Friends, and was celebrated throughout the land as a chemist and as the discoverer of the "atomic theory." The Mayor and Corporation joined with the scientific friends of the late Doctor in giving this public testimonial to his worth, and near upon two hundred private carriages, including those of the Corporation and the various societies in the towa, formed a part of the procession to the Ardwick Cemetery, where his remains were interred. American Indians in England.—A party of Iowa Indians, from their hunting grounds,500 miles west of the Mississippi, arrived at Liverpool on Monday. They are considered by George Catlin, the celebrated North American traveller, to be the finest specimens of the Indian tribe that has ever visited Europe, being remarkable for their extraordinary stature, herculean strength, skill in the use of Indian weapons, and knowledge of varied and amusing games and diversions. The party consists of the head of the tribe, with some of his chief warriors, their wives and families, amounting in number to 15 or 16 persons.

On Thursday, two of the Micmac tribe of Indians, who arrived in this port during the present week, applied to the magistrates to give them a pass to London. One of them was a good looking intelligent young man, who spoke the English language rather fluently. He stated that their object was to have an interview with her Majesty, in order to obtain some assistance for their tribe. He said also that it was his intention to wait upon Mr. Gatlin, who he expected would direct them as to the course they ought to pursue. When informed that Mr. Rankin had lately been in this town with a body of Indians, he expressed great regret that he had not had an opportunity of seeing him. The pass was granted, and the Indian, who seemed quite conversant with the forms to be observed, surveyed the proceedings in the court with the composure and indifference of a person to whom such scenes were a matter of every day occurrence.

Betting on Race Horses.—At the Guildford assizes, on the 15th ult. Mr. Russell brought the action against Lord George Bentinck. The declaration set forth that on the 31st of May, 1843, one John Day did, by betting on a horse race, contrary to the law, lose the sum of £3,000 to the defendant, and therefore, that the plaintiff was entitled to sue for and recover £3,000, so won and paid, and treble the value thereof, making together the sum of £12,000. The declaration then went on to state, that one Henry Hill had unlawfully betted upon a horse race the said sum of £3,000, which he lost to the defendant, and which he paid to the defendant on the 6th of June, 1843. Mr. Hill's memory failed him, and Mr. Gully having been called, stated that he made the bet for himself, and not for Mr. Day. Then, said Baron Parke, there is an end to the case, and the jury found accordingly. [This case was tried, notwithstanding the recent Act, Lord George Bentinck declining to plead the statute, having a desire to try it on its own merits.]

THE BLOODSTONE CASE—HERBERT VS. DAY.—
This was a feigned issue directed by the Court of Queen's Bench to try whether a certain colt named Bloodstone, which came in first at the late Ascot Races, was foaled in 1842; and whether its sire was a horse called Bubastes, and its dam a mare called Romaike. The jury, after two days inquiry, returned a verdict for the defendant.

RACE HORSES IN AMERICA—CHARACTERISTIC ANSWER.—Mr. Tattersall, the owner of the celebrated betting room and dealer in running horses, in his examination before the Lords' Committee on gaming, after instancing the large sums given by firms in America for first-rate horses, he adds—"They were most noble buyers. My orders were almost unlimited. They trusted to me. And all the best race horses now in America are by English horses. Whenever racing is done away with there is an end to the noble animal, and the manly sport, and to your humble servant."

The Patrie, Paris journal, of Saturday evening, has the following article: "Rumors of the highest importance were circulated to-day at the Bourse. It was said that the Prince de Joinville had landed, and had taken possession of Tangiers, where the tri-colored flag was waving at this moment. It was added that the English consul had immediately protested against this measure. The complication of these events, the strange silence on the part of government—all this has caused a real panic, which has produced a considerable fall in the prices of public securities, as will be seen in our report below, that the Three per Cents, fell 75 cen., and the Fives 1f. 10c. There were other reports mentioned besides these. It would appear that the King received the important news we have just mentioned, last evening, at the moment he was going to dinner, and the Ministers were instantly sent to meet in council, over which his Majesty presided. After the council, extraordinary couriers were despatched in all directions. Finally, persons who pretend to be well informed assert that Tangier, immediately after the bombardment, had been pillaged, plundered, and laid waste by the Moors themselves. Some exaggeration there may be in these rumors; but public anxiety is extreme, and for the Government to remain silent longer would be an unpardonable fault."

Morocco.

The successive reports from Morocco contradict each other as to the actual beginning of hostilities. The Messager, of the 17th instant, states that the government has received news from Tangiers of the 7th, respecting facts announced by the telegraphic despatch given in the Moniteur of the 15th. On the 4th the answer arrived which the Pacha of Larache, Sidi Bouselem, had made to the ultimatum of France. That reply was not satisfactory, it said nothing of the intended dissolution of the bodies of troops collected on the frontier of Algeria, the number of which would be augmented by the arrival of the hereditary Prince with 20,000 or 25,000 men. The answer renewed the promise that exemplary punishment should be inflicted on the Moorish chiefs guilty of the aggression upon our frontier, but making it a condition that Marshal Bugeaud should be recalled. In fine, the part of the letter relative to Abd-el-Kader appeared in truth more satisfactory than what had hitherto been obtained, but the style of it was vague, obscure, embarrassed, and full of restrictions. His Royal Highness the Prince de Joinville and M. de Nyon, charge d'affaires of his majesty, could not regard that reply as acceptable, which appeared to have no object but to gain time. His royal highness, in conformity with the instructions of the king's government, determined to attack the fortifications of Tangiers.

The following facts appear to result from the report addressed to the Minister of the Navy:—

It was yesterday, the 6th, about half-past eight o'clock in the morning, that the squadron under the command of the Prince, at anchor under the walls of Tangiers, opened its fire with shouts of "Vive le Roi." In one hour the fire of the place was silenced, the batteries were dismantled and the guns dismounted. On our side the loss was not considerable. Notwithstanding the difficulty of the ground, the squadron came up and took its station with complete success. The Suffren, in which the Prince was, anchored in six fathoms and a half, in a rocky bottom at the nearest point to the enemy's batteries, which the Admiral had reserved for himself.

The fire, which opened®at half-past eight, ceased batteries, which the Admiral had reserved for himself.

The fire, which opened at half-past eight, ceased entirely at about 11 o'clock. It was kept up the whole while with an ardor which did not for a moment exclude the composure and precision required for cerrect pointing. It is to that correctness, as well as to the station selected by the Prince, that the rapid success obtained is to be attributed.

The example set by the Suffren was followed by all the ships of the squadron. The resistance was much more vigorous than was generally expected; several cannon on the ramparts ceased their fire only after having been shattered.

Mr. Hay arrived during the engagement in the Vesuvius, from Mogadore. In the evening he waited on the Prince de Joinville, and had a conference with him.

According to the preparations made on the 7th, the squadron, would be able to put to sea on the following day.

It was announced that the Prince de Joinville's report upon the bombardment of Tangier, looked for with so much impatience would be published in the Moniteur. The Moniteur publishes nothing.

Theatricals.

Several members of the Haymarket company are performing at the Liverpool Theatre, where the "Merry Wives of Windsot" has been produced.

The Liver Theatre, at Liverpool, has been opened under the management of Mr. Brookes, a young tragic actor of great power and promise.

The Haymarket season concluded on the 7th inst. Mr. Webster delivered an address, in which he stated, with allowable pride, that this "most profitable season" had extended to "upwards of four hundred nights'," without the performers having lost a single night's salary.

The successjot Shakspeare's plays at Sadler's Wells seems to increase with each successive revival: "Hamlet," which was last produced, proves so popular that it is announced to be played for a continuance. Meanwhile, comedy is not neglected. "The Provoked Husband" has been performed this week.

The announcement of "last nights" at the Opera, and the closing of the Haymarket and Princess's, are not less certain signs of a waning season than the evacuation of Covent-garden by the League, the breaking up of Parliament, and the centrifugal movement of the world of fashion.

Another "Aladdia" of the burlesque species has started into life and popularity at the Lyceum. No sooner did the shutting of the Princess's convert its "Wonderful Lamp" into a dark lantern, than another is produced at the Lyceum, superbly mounted, and burning brightly with the spirit of fun. Mr. A'Beckett's "new light," however, though it no longer shines in Oxford street, is not extinguished, but enlivens with its broad glare of merriment the laughing audiences of the New Strand.

Professor Risley and his sons have been fulfilling.

Professor Risley and his sons have been fulfilling an engagement of forty nights at the Theatre Porte St. Martin, Paris, to the greatest houses ever known at that establishment, left for the capital of Belgium, where he has been equally successful. The manager of the Porte St. Martin presented Risley's sons with a beautiful gold watch each, as a memento of his esteem, and two distinguished artistes, Taglioni and C. Grisi, gave the same graceful and fascinating youths an elegant gold pin each. Presents exceeding four thousand francs in amount have been received by them during their stay in France. They are about proceeding to St. Petersburgh. The Brussels l'Emancipation of the 10th inst. contains an account of the musicians attached to the orchestra of the Theatre Royal, in that city, proceeding in a body, accompanied by the directors, to the "Hotel de Suède," where the Risleys were staying, and there, in estimation of their talent, gave them a brilliant serenade. The same paper adds, in noticing this handsome compliment to the American strangers. "Une affluence "Une affluence" "Une affluence " their talent, gave them a brilliant serenade. The same paper adds, in noticing this handsome compliment to the American strangers, "Une offluence de monde s'y était rendue." Their success, at the Brussels Theatre, the manager states in his announcement, "has never been surpassed by the most distinguished artists, and the enthusiasm of the crowds who witness the performance is constant and extraordinary."

Markets.

Liverpool Cotton Market.—Aug. 19, P. M.—The sales to-day are fully 4000 bales, including 1200 for export.—The market dull, but with scarcely any change in prices. Since the departure of the Great Western, the market has had a quiet feeling, with a moderate demand from the trade and exporters, and an entire absence of all speculative inquiry. Prices on the whole are more in favor of buyers, and may be quoted in most instances 1-18th to 1-8d per lb lower for ordinary to middling Am. than they were at the date of our last publication. The sales to-day amounted to 4,000 bales, and a similar number were disposed of on Saturday.

Why is it, Mr. Editor, that our countrymen, the moment they begin to go abroad, begin to eat and drink? To judge from the practice, so far as my observation has extended, I should conclude that these people must be fed short at home.

This indulgence, I venture to say, costs the community, by loss of time, many thousands of dollare per day. The Railroad companies ought to regard economy of time more than they do now, by abating this nuisance—it only requires firmness and courage to do it. Therefore do it.

tholic,) has been beautifully decorated by the pencil of Signior Monachesi, an Italian artist of some celebrity, residing now in this city. The embelishments consist in a magnificent altar-piece, representing the crucifixion, (which has displaced the old crucifix that has stood so long in this timehonored edifice,) and also a chaste altar, sculptured from pure white marble, which, with the admirable freeco paintings on the walls, depicting our Saviour and the Apostles, with various other devices, serve to render the interior of this church at once solemnly and impressively beautiful. In the language of the psalmist, one is led to exclaim, "how I love the beauty of thy habitation, Oh! God." In this respect, there appears to be no sect who are more zealous than the Catholics. During the whole of the scandalous riots which recently occurred, here, this church (St. Mary's,) was unthreatened and unharmed. The congregation is one of the most wealthy and respectable in the

There is much animation springing up among the "natives" for the distribution of office—in other words, for a share of the "loaves and fishes." Already two of their organs are at loggerheads, namely, the "Native American" and "American Advocate." As I have previously stated to you, this question of nativeism and foreignsm, will be productive of a terrible issue in this country, before it is finally settled. Proscription seems to be the order of the day, and the mest violent abuse of the Catholic religior, pervades the columns of each of these papers daily, including also the "Sun." the order of the day, and the mest violent abuse of the Catholic religior, pervades the columns of each of these papers daily, including also the "Sun." I am a Native American, and disdain to be led a "silly captive," by such men as Louis C. Levin and Augustus De Kalb Tarr, whose political prospects are beginning to be well understood by this community. It would seem that the glorious and benevolent motto of our country, "E pluribus Unum," is to be torn from the eagle's beak, and all the horrors of a revolution and intestine warfare placed in its stead. More of this anon.

The Walnut St. Theatre closed last Saturday evening with one of the largest audiences of the season. It was Forrest's benefit, on which occa sion he performed Judge Conrad's tragedy of "Jack Cade," in a bold and masterly manner. This actor attempted Richard the Third, the other evening, but made a complete failure. No one can approach little Booth as the "crooked backed tyrant" Mr. Marshall opens the Walnut again on next Saturday, and in the meantime intends embellishing the interior. This theatre is a great favorite with the public.

Burton is steaming away at the Arch, but has had poor houses lately. He is indefatigable, however, in his efforts to please.

General Rufus Welch opens his Olympic Circus to-night. The Gen'l, like yourself, is the Napoleon of his profession. He is a "whole souled fellow," both industrious and capable, and is an immense favorite with the public. His career is certain to be prosperous.

The line of steam packets between this city and New York, is in the full tide of successful experiment. What the result will be, I am unable to say, but hope that this communication may be kept up, as it will afford a most delightful sea-ercursion to the numerous invalids who are continually to be found in large and populous cities.

In politics every thing is remarkably quiet. Our principal streets are filled, however, with ludicrous caricatures of the several candidates for the Presidential office, in which Gen. Jackson, Martin V

FURTHER OUTRAGES ON THE HELDEBREEG.—We learn that Sheriff Batterman, while on his way through the western part of Rensselaerville, on Saturday morning, about four miles west of the village, was set upon and badly treated by a large party of indians. We have some particulars which we give as related to us.

The Sheriff was accompanied by three of his deputies, Leonard, Osterhout, and another, having some legal process to serve. He was himself armed with two of Coit's revolving pistols; and his deputies had arms, two rifles and three pistols. Unexpectedly, the usual signal was heard, (the blowing of a horn) and immediately several mem, disguised as Indians, arrested his progress, and demanded to know his business. The Sheriff declined giving them any information, but told them to go about their own. There was some further gress, and demanded to know his business. The Sheriff declined giving them any information, but told them to go about their own. There was some further parley, when the sheriff, being resisted in his efforts to get on, put his hands behind him to get at his pistols, when he was seizedby the gang, which had now increased to some sixty men, and disarmed, as were also his deputies. They then secured the sheriff by tying his hands behind him—and gave him a coat of tar and teathers. His deputies were at first threatened with the same treatment, but upon consultation it was determined that if they would solemnly promise to take the Sheriff back to town precisely in the condition he them was, they would release them from punishment or harm. The promise was made of course, and the party returned—the sheriff being relieved after coming some three miles.

It is stated, that upon their departure, the chief of the gang colled for the arms that had been taken from the party, in order to restore them to their owners; but they could not be found, save one pistol, which was returned. The Sheriff, we understand, knows the person who gave the signal blast that drew the Indians about his wagon; and is determined to pursue the matter to a conviction—Albany Argus, Sept. 2.
